You have to enter your password to install, but then they will work on all future Windows versions as long as they keep that password. Details here: Tumor-targeted immunotherapy with an anti-HER2 antibody conjugated to a recombinant bacterial-derived tumor homing peptide (TLQP). A recombinant fusion protein, Tumor-Targeted Ligand Quasi Perfusion (TLQP), was constructed by adding a tumor homing peptide (thymus targeting) to a single-chain antibody (scFv), which was targeted to the HER2-neu oncogene in breast cancer. The scFv was expressed in Escherichia coli and purified by metal chelate affinity chromatography. The thymus targeting peptide and 4-nitrophenyloxycarbonyl (N-Cbz) protected puromycin were conjugated to the scFv by the peptide spacer. TLQP binds specifically to the cell surface antigen, HER2-neu, in breast cancer cell lines and has a high affinity to the HER2-neu bearing cell lines. These cell lines could be killed by TLQP and were not killed by the fusion protein without the thymus targeting peptide. A significant therapeutic effect could be achieved in the human breast cancer xenografts (TU-Bcap-bN-HER2) by TLQP immunotherapy with only a low dose of the immunotoxin (4 mg/kg, i.v.). Furthermore, because the thymus-targeting peptide consists of a natural peptide, we expect it will be a useful part of the construction of other immunotherapeutic agents.
